Syntegon donates to Crailsheim food bank

- Company presents a check for 3,500 euros
- Donation supports the food bank van
- Continued financial support in the spirit of a long-term partnership

Crailsheim, February 27, 2025. Syntegon has donated 3,500 euros to the local food bank in Crailsheim. The organization will use the donation for its food bank van, which delivers food to people in need in the region. To this end, Syntegon site manager Albrecht Werner recently presented a check to Karin Coffey and Markus Kaufmann from the food bank.

The Crailsheim food bank provides donated food and essential goods to people in need. Since 2020, it has also been reaching those unable to visit its store in Crailsheim by operating a food bank van. The donation from Syntegon will help cover expenses such as fuel, maintenance, and repairs. "We regularly incur costs for fuel and vehicle upkeep. Syntegon's donation is a great help," says Karin Coffey, who heads up the Tafel in Crailsheim.

"As a strategic partner to the pharmaceutical and food industries, we are deeply committed to both health and ensuring access to sufficient food. With this donation, we want to ensure that the food bank can continue its vital mission of supporting disadvantaged people in the region," emphasizes Albrecht Werner, Site Manager at Syntegon in Crailsheim.

The Crailsheim food bank has been providing food and essential goods to disadvantaged people since 2005. These items are donated by supermarkets, bakeries, and drugstores in the greater Crailsheim area. The organization is funded entirely by donations and revenue from its store. Syntegon has supported the food bank financially in previous years as well.
